

Now I Kneel

Long ago
As springtime filled the air
As a new star burned brightly in the sky

Born of God
To earthly woman fair
Was the Son of whom the ancients prophesied

CHORUS

And now I kneel because He suffered
And I will live because He died
His wine press tread alone
For my sins to atone
On Calvery's cross was crucified

King of Kings
The Lord, the Great I Am
He who etched the law in stone on Sinai

Came to earth
A Sacrifice Divine
God's own Son conceived to save and justify

His words were not first heard on the shores of Galilee
But echoed through the dawning of creations yet to be

Repeat CHORUS

And I am left to stand amazed at the Love which He offers
Confused at the grace
Which so fully embraces me
